Easy way to R & R manual shift knob

I needed to replace my shift boot and decided to change the shift knob at the same time. I read most of the post on here about yanking on it etc. The easiest way I did it was..... I took my drummel with a cut-off wheel in place and cut a line through the shift knob material on opposite sides. After I cut the material which took about 30 seconds, I peeled back the material and used a screwdriver to remove the U clip that holds the knob on. After removing the clip the knob slid right off. The new MOMO knob was a little taller so I used my drummel with a cut-off wheel and cut off about 1-/2" of the shifter and then replaced the shift knob. The boot has a molded plastic insert that gets stopped by the ridge on the shifter. Since I made my shifter a little shorter I used my drummel with a sanding disc and removed the step which allowed the boot to slide down the shifter so I could install the knob. Then I just slid it back up flush with the bottom of the knob. Looks great and the whole process took about 30 minutes.

REWARD EXCELLENCE!
